To the Schools of Centralia -- Accompanying Ceremonies. On last Saturday afternoon the members of On last Saturday afternoon the members of the different societies of this place might be seen wending their way to their respective places of meeting; the occasion being a parade under the auspices of Washington Camp, No. 166, P. O. S of A., and in honor of the presentation of the flags to the borough

This project was talked of about a year ago, and then, little or nothing was heard about it, and then, little or nothing was heard about it, and we had begun to think that our schools were not to be adorned with the glorious Stars and Stripes; but it seems the boys had not abandoned the idea, but, for reasons best known to themselves, had postponed it from time to time until they finally decided on Dec. 21st as the day for the presentation to take place. Invitations were sent to the different societies of town to participate. The parade was formed on Main street in the following order:

Centralia Cornet Band.

After parading through the principal streets they proceeded to I. O. O. F. Hail, where the presentation took place.
Mayor Kenney, of Reading, who is also State President of the P. O. S. of A., made a fine speech which was calculated to fill all young Americans with a desire to besome members of the P. O. S. of A., and the hearts of all with that patriotism that should characterize every American citizen.

The meeting was presided over by Capt. Edward Reese. The flags were presented on behalf of Camp 106, P. O. S. of A., by Mr. Farringer, a member of the camp, and received by Mr. Edward Williams, Jr., on behalf of the Echool Board. Short addresses were also made by Mr. Geo. W. Davis, of the school board, and W. W. Hefner, principal of the borough schools. The M. E. Choir was also present, and did good service in the line of vocal music.

Now that the flags have been presented.

Now that the flags have been presented we hope that the design of the donors will be faithfully carried out, and that the lessons that that flag should teach will be so deeply impressed on the hearts and minds of the scholars that they will grow up to be true patriots who will give their life, if need be, for that flag and the nation it represents.

THE southerners are very much displeased with the refatal of Secretary Proctor to allow the usual honor of flying the flag over the War Department at half most, in memory of Jefferson Davie, according to the custom when an ex Secretary of War is dead. It would be hard to give a reason why the fl g that he had dishonored should go into mourning st his decease.

Every person who honestly sympathizes with labor tells the working men to be united in one organization, and not 'o throw away their energies in fighting their battles in divided columns. Speaking editorially on this matter the Wilkesbarre News Dealer says: "There will be no relief until the miners drop their race prejudice and unite in ore grand organization. Then they will be able to do something for their own cause."

WITH this issue of THE TRI-WEEKLY we bid a'll our friends a happy and merry Christmas. It would be such to all if all were doing their best to make it so. Merry Christmas it used to be in the olden times, when the mistletoe hung on the baron's castle walls and the retainers were blithe and gay. Joyous and happy it should ever remain as the time of all times when families reunite by the home fireside, and old friends talk over the scenes of bygone days. Of all the holidays none can compete with Christmas time. It is not only kallowed by home joys of reunions and retrospects of happy days, feasting and greeting of old friends, but it is, and ever will be hallowed by the memory of Him who lived but to do good, and make mankind happy, whose teachings have been, and will continue, a blessing for all time. The blessed N zirene, Jesus, the teacher and exemplar of all that is yirtuous and worthy of imitation and practice. In memory of Him Christmas will ever remain a welcome and joyous holiday.

THE New York Herald discants on the eyils of three quarter time among the miners of this region. The Herald doss not really understand what three quarter time means. It is not so terrible a thing to the miner, for he by pushing a little can dig about as much coal as he can get out in full time, but to the poor mine laborer it is a calamity. It is a reduction | BIRD SEED, BIRD BATHS. of his wages one-fourth with about the same amount of work to perform. Were for Breeding. his hours properly reduced three quarter time would be seven and a half hours for the day, but a coal operator's three fourths of ten hours means eight. Then everything is put on the rush to get all the coal through the screens so as to meet the demands of production inside of the mines and when quitting time, at night, arrives the laborer finds that with hurry and push and the half hour filehed from him he has nearly accomplished as much as if he had worked a full day. To crown all he has also the discouragement to know that this reduction of his wages has not operated very much in keeping down the stock in the market and the thing that happens is a total suspension of the colliery for days, weeks or months, as it may be and he and his family are totally deprived of the means of comfortable living. Three quarter time is but the beginning of the mine laborer's misery. It is, by no means, the consummation of his woes. Is a system like this right? Is society on proper foundation where such things are of daily occurrence? Hardly.

A Sound Legal Opinion.

FUNERALS IN THE EAST.

HOW MORE THAN HALF THE WORLD BURN AND BURY THEIR DEAD.

Funerals in Siam Which Cost $1,000,000. A First Class Cremation for $2.40; Children, 75 Cents-The "Towers of Silence." Rich Undertakers Among the Hindoos.

The home of cremation is in the east. Siam disposes of most of its bodies in this way, and I saw a dozen of corpses frying and sizzling on the banks of the Ganges. I visited a great crematory in Japan, where the men in charge told me they burnt between three and four hundred bodies a month, and I attended a big cremation in Burmah.

This Japanese crematory was on the edge of Kiota. In going to it I drove through the streets of shops filled with the beautiful blue china for which that city is so noted, and out through fields of rice and tea to a large brick building on the side of a hill. As I went I passed many funeral processions, consisting of stalwart Japs in blue gowns and lowl hats, four of whom carried a box swung on a pole, which rested upon their shoulders. This box was much like a child's playhouse, and it had its roof and its curtained windows. I was told that it was a coffin and that each party carried a corpse. These coffins were about four feet long, two feet wide and four feet high. They were made of thin white pine, unpainted and unvarnished, and each coffin is burned or thrown away at the time of the burning of the body.

LIKE AN AMERICAN ENGINE ROOM. The crematory itself looked much like an American engine room; the furnaces might have been made in America, and they were built so that they opened into an aisle running around a large room. Wood was piled at their doors and a furious draught sucked the air into their mouths, and the great flames roared as they ate up the human fuel which was piled in the vaults above them. There was but little smell as I entered the building, but I could hear the crackling and frying of the flesh, and the whole of the burning could be plainly seen. A hollow eyed, bald headed ghoul presided over them, and he stirred up

"We have," said he, "first, second and third class cremations, and we graduate our rates according to the age of the body. A man or woman can be burnt in first class style for $2.40. We will give either a good second ling Red Fing Oil in the house you have class burning for $1.25, and we can send a Physician always at hand. It kills man off in very respectable style for $1. ing to the class, for $1, 75 cents or 60 cents, "We burn the bodies as soon as they com and boys and girls from 3 to 12 years of ag are burnt for from $1.50 to 75 cents apiece. in, and we average at least ten cremations a day. We give the bone ashes to the familie of the dead after the cremation is over, and they take them away and bury them in their family tombs." Siam is the land of cremation. It costs more money to die there than to live, and the funerals of our congressmen, which are paid for at extravagant rates by the government, cost but little in comparison with that of the Siamese noble. When a king dies in Siam the whole nation takes part in a funeral, and $1,000,000 and upwards are sometimes spent in the turning of the royal embalmed body into ashes. The last queen who died at Bang kok was seated in a golden urn for a number of months after her death, and the foreign merchants in Siam bought thousands of dol lars worth of goods from Europe and China for the king to give as presents to those who came to the funeral. A great temple or palace, with roofs covered with gilt paper, was built as her bier, and the funeral car was overlaid with pure gold and set with jewels. This car was six stories high, and it was surrounded by tiers of golden umbrellas. All the foreign diplomats attended the burning, and there was a tiger fight, a lion dance, and a tournament among the celebrations. The king lighted the fire at 6 p. m., and he gave presents of gold and silver as well as a dinner to the most noted of the mourners. It took a full week to perform the ceremonies, and at the close the ashes were taken in a royal barge and strewn upon the waters of the Menam river. Every man in Siam has as good a burning as his purse will buy, but few are able to undertake the expense of building a palace in which to be burned. The average cremation takes place on a pile of wood laid crossways, and after it is over the bones are gathered up and tied in a rag to be kept as relics. The Parsees always walk to their funerals. They are the richest and brightest mer chants of the east, but there is no difference shown as to their condition at funerals. The corpses of the rich as well as the poor lie naked on the Towers of Silence, the bones of all going to the same reservoir, and the vultures who today feed on the flesh of Dives make their morrow's meal off of Lazarus. HINDOO CREMATIONS. I saw many cremations among the Hin doos, and I attended not a few funerals in India. The bodies were generally carried on the shoulders of men without coffins, and covered with cloths. In some cases a band accompanied the procession, and the burnings were in general very simple. At Cal-cutta they took place in unroofed sheds on the banks of the Hoogley, but the fires were built on the ground, and a little hole was scooped out below them to make a draft.

At Benares the cremations took place in the open air, and after the body had burned SPECIAL ATTENTION PAID TO RE- | to ashes, the ashes and bones remaining were dragged down into the river. The undertakers of India belong to the dome or thief caste. These preside over the funerals and sell the wood and light the fires used in cremations. They break the elbows, wrists, knee and ankle joints before cremating the body, and at Calcutta the body is placed on the fire with the face downwards. It is covered with ghee or clarified butter to make it burn, and the wood used varies with the cost > of the funeral. A rich man will send his soul to heaven with sandal wood, while a poor man takes what he can buy. The domes sell everything connected with the cremation, and to be chief dome of a big city is a money making position. One of the richest men in Benares is the head of the undertakers, and he has made his money in this way. There is a regular charge for burning, and the ordinary cost of a cremation is less than $2. Funerals in India are, however, very expensive, and presents are given away by the nearest relatives A Grand Display of Millinery of the deceased to those who come to the funeral. A rajah of Calcutta not long ago spent $250,000 in burning his father, and rich families often spend as high as $100,000 in this sort of fireworks.-Frank G. Carpenter in St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Mrs. Burnett's Luck. Some years ago a daughter of Harriet Beecher Stowe gave Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett a thin gold ring, set with a single "lucky" stones), and shortly afterward she made her first success in the field of literature, NETS AND HATS, and FINE TRIMMINGS where she had formerly labored in vain. She laughingly attributed her success to the moonstone, and since then the ring has never left her finger, and she declares it never will,-Chicago Herald.

There has sprung up at the bar a class of lawyers who make a good yearly revenue, but it is made up entirely of fees secured through brother attorneys. These auxiliary attorneys, as I might call them, are men of brilliant attainments and attractive physical attributes. They adorn a case both in a legal and physical sense. These gentlemen have not the habits of industry and application that make them valuable as the regular attorneys for corporations or individuals with extensive litigation. It is the lawyer who has set business hours, who keeps engagements, who hunts up law and precedents, that gets the steady employment, and it is he who calls upon his ornate and gifted brother at the bar to appear in cases where there is, not to put too fine a point upon it, some posing to be done. The auxiliary earns his fee beyond question. It is readily paid to his genius, and I only refer to it as showing that there are many kinds of specialties fol lowed at the bar. It is this necessity of having lawyers of contrasting traits in important cases that is the reason for so many law partnerships and business unions between the draft horse and the thoroughbred racer .-

Attorney in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Did any one ever see a man or a woman Bouny more than he saw an auburn horse. The Pride of the Valley, per sack, 2 25 with "bay" hair? asks The Horse World. No word bay does not of itself signify a color, Graham, and its use for the purpose of designating the color of a horse is purely traditional. It originated in England in a district where the breed of horses was mostly several shades | Buckwheat away from the brown, and yet too brown to be called red. There grew in this district a great many bay trees, to the leaves of which the horses exhibited a decided affinity. The bay tree had long been charished among the natives for the medical qualities of its leaves and berries, and in a way was sacred to them, having had a place in many of their legends and superstitions. Every breeder of horses was sure to have a number of the trees, and relied upon them almost exclusively for the medicines wherewith to cure his horses. The leaves were used in fomentations and the berries in clysters. The horses coming from this district, reared among the bay trees, became known as bay horses, and the uniformity of their color led to the common
